Board of Works Provides Jobs for Job Lot of Former Officials.

FORMIDABLE ARRAY OF IN-SPECTORS FOR PUBLIC WORK.

M. I. Morris, former dog catcher; T. A.

Herringer, former humane officer; E. R.

Black, formerly employed in the engineer's office; H. H. Brough, former sealer of weights and measures, and James Phil did act two weeks ago and ordered the board to allow the estimates but because Herringer, former humane officer; E. R. Hps. former deputy street supervisor, were recommended for jobs as inspectors by the recommended for jobs as inspectors by the board of public works last evening. These "formers" will secure the positions as soon as men are needed. In addition to this formid-lible list of men qualified to inspect public work and see that it is done well the board recommended the employment of H. A. Olson. J. R. Frame, William Doxey, W. P. Hills and Lee Chamberlain should occasion for their services arise. The "former" who applied for one of the jobs and did not land is the celebrated William Jones, several times an "ex" in the street department, and the man who has twice brought charges against Jake Raleigh.

The committee instructed the city recorder not to send any communication to the board concerning the matter. The finance committee has done this recently on numerous occasions, and probably will continue doing it until the city has more cash. The council can pass all the orders it desires for new work, but they never reach the board because of this attitude on the part of the committee.

Mr. Rooklidge proposed that the council be asked to pass an ordinance regulating the building of sidewalk projections to the curb and walks leading to houses. He said many of these were constructed without complying with the law and desired that something be done. A communication

Nothing Wrong Known.

"If there is anything wrong with the work, I want to know about it, so I can fix it and get the money," said Frank Gawn, superintendent for P. J. Moran.
"It is all right so far as I know," said Chief Inspector Fitzpatrick.
"As far as I am informed, the engineer's office is satisfied that the work has been done right," assented Assistant Engineer George Chaney.
C. D. Rooklidge thought that the problem had been considered long enough and moved that a committee consisting of the whole board take the matter up and re-

Slept Too Publicly.

The chief inspector. M. Fitzpatrick, failed to offer any comment as to whether the inspectors always stand up, but it is assumed that they sit down now and then fust for a little rest. In fact, the chief inspector fired one of them last summer for sleeping too near the street, where people could see him.

The matter of passing the final estimate on the new water supply main was taken up by the board and again postponed because of the absence of the city engineer. The estimate amounts to $7.64.25 in cash, and for this reason the engineer has been instructed by the finance committee of the council to either stay away from the board meeting or say nothing when he goes there concerning the acceptance of the work. This question has been before the board since Jan. 1, and recently a loans which subsequently ensued.

as well as other seasons of industrial or commercial depression, he declared, were to be found in the distinctive features of a progressive civilization like that of the United States where operations targely have to do with calculations upon future requirements and where the greatest profits are realized from a successful anticipation of prospective conditions.

Generally speaking, he said there were three related causes of depression; public and private extravagance; a lack of hor-mony between different branches of pro-duction, so that a surplus of divers classes of commodities exists which can-not readily be exchanged for others; and not readily be exchanged for others; and the absorption of the capital of a country in anticipation of enlarged demands in the future and the hope for greater rewards in providing for some new form of convenience or luxury. "Such uses of capital," he said, "may be illustrated by cases like that of the Hoosae tunnel, the subways under New York City and the rivers adjacent therete; the Panama canal or, in general, in the change of circual or, in general, in the change of circulating to fixed capital by the construction of extensive factories, buildings, railways or other public works of any kind.
